As you may guess, I've had reason to call Scott Tucker on several occasions to do whatever I could to make the "transition" as smooth and as comfortable for all.

One of my recent conversations ended with, "So, how do you want me to address you—Pastor Scott, Reverend Tucker?" He simply replied, "How about 'Scott.'"

Blessings,

Jimmy Brownlee

Dear Friends,

How do you start your day?

For some, the day begins with a morning run, physical exercise to jolt the body to attention. Others check in with world and local events through the lens of a newspaper, television, or the internet. Still others grope through the darkness and into the kitchen, thirsting for that concentrated dose of sugar and caffeine we call "coffee."

The first verses of John's Gospel don't tell us much about how to structure our morning routine, but they do tell us about the importance of any start—especially a new start that has its origins in the power and person of God.

God's word set the world in motion. He pushes us out of our darkness and onto the path of salvation through Jesus Christ. And he still works today to offer us all a new hope, a fresh start.

My family and I are happy to be joining you at Cuthbert United Methodist Church for the start of this new day—a new season of life and ministry together. We'll see you on Sunday to start it off right together.

With joy,
Scott

Covered Dish Lunch this Sunday

We will welcome our new pastor and his family with a luncheon after worship this Sunday. Following our tradition, this will be exclusively covered dish with tea being provided. This is the day to 'show off' all your favorite dishes! Cherrie King will be cooking green beans for the whole crowd, so bare that in mind when you are planning what dishes you will bring. Also, please remember that we try to keep your food warm, but we have very limited ability to do so. If you are unable to prepare food, or prefer to make a monetary donation instead please contact Patricia Bradley or Cherrie King as soon as possible. Thanks!

Parsonage Item Needs for our new Pastor's family

A BIG thank you goes to those who have almost accommodated our entire list. Items left include:
